

[illegible]

The invention relates to an electronic component with soldering areas arranged at specific locations on at least one exterior surface, whereby the component is covered with an anti-solder coating on its surfaces excluding the areas intended for soldering. Further, the invention relates to a coating medium intended to prevent solder splash.

FIGURE 1